The unbelievable character receives a letter that he does not want his wife to ever see. After sneaking the envelope into his pocket, he locks it in a drawer, which in the fullness of his partner's time is forced to open eventually. Throw it away! It's almost as if you're being controlled by a half-written script that can't be bothered to solve even the most basic narrative. The whole film is weighed down by sloppy narratives and equally unusual. This is one about a lifelong friend who takes too long to take. They should be romantically intertwined with Lily Collins, a perfectly glamorous star as Rosie, a girl who weeks before she was due to head for a dream job in Boston, conceived by a handsome man she shouldn't be with (Christian Cook). The handsome guy she should be with (Sam Claflin) certainly makes his way to the US. This is a binary universe. Everybody's either a good egg or all the crap. The problem is that the three main crap (two women and one man) all were scooped from the same bucket, each with overdressed, preening and happy. Of course, none of this stops good eggs from romancing each same crap in succession. The demands of the story will not be resisted. However, domestic audiences may be too distracted by the bizarre changes in place to pay attention to the plot or the character. Rosie's love was shot in Dublin, but somewhere in the production process the city has become an unidentified British city. The red postbox sits on D6 streets, Shelburne and St. Stephen's Green, somewhere. Maybe Dublin is separating itself from the project. We have detected that JavaScript is disabled in.com this browser. The film is Lily Collins and Sam Claflin, with Christian Cook, Tamsin Egerton, Suki Waterhouse, Jamie Beamish and Jaime Winstone in supporting roles. The plot of Alex and Rosie are best friends for almost as long as they remember. During Rosie's 18th birthday party, Alex kissed Rosie at a drunken age and he realized he had a romantic feeling for her. The next day, while nursing a hangover and having her stomach pumped, Rosie regretted getting drunk and told Alex that she hoped the night would never happen. Alex interpreted her words as Rosie just wanted to be friends. Greg, the fittest guy of their year. Ask Rosie to dance at school while she's She accepted Greg's offer when she learned that Alex was thinking of going to dance with a woman named Bethany. After the dance, Rosie had sex with Greg, but the condom fell off inside her. Rosie aspired to run her own hotel one day, and applied and was accepted into a hotel management course at Boston University. She rushes to tell Alex, but finds out that he had sex with Bethany, which causes her to vomit. Rosie discovers she's pregnant. But refusing to tell Alex was afraid that he would give him a chance to study at Harvard to help look after her. After Alex left the US, she gave birth to a daughter, whom she named Katie. Alex learns Rosie's pregnancy from Bethany and becomes Katie's godfather. Five years later, Rosie visited Alex in Boston and they spent the night together, talking and visiting the place. The next morning she found out that his girlfriend was pregnant. She understood that Alex's living situation was wrong and tried to talk to him, but he rebuffs her saying that at least their child will have both parents angry. Rosie leaves Boston immediately. She reconciled with Greg, who began fleeing to Ibiza when learning of her pregnancy, and the two eventually married in 2009. She slammed wedding, now a famous model, and suggested that Bethany look up Alex on a trip to the US. Five years have passed. Rosie's father died, Alex attended the funeral, where he reconciled with Rosie. In the same incident, Greg behaved immaturely, causing the scene. Later, alex encourages to write a note of Rosie saying she deserves better and that he can be a better person. However, Greg intercepted the note and hid it from Rosie. Later, Rosie discovers that Greg is cheating on her and fires him. While throwing away his belongings. She called him, but found that Bethany was living with him now and the two were engaged. They invited Rosie to be the best at their wedding. Rosie's plot to interrupt the wedding but failed because the church ceremony ended when she arrived at the reception. Rosie gave a speech telling Alex that she loved him as a friend. Her daughter Katie took a friend named Toby to a wedding in a friendship reminiscent of Rosie and Alex when they were children. During the dance, Toby kisses Katie, but Katie pushes him away and runs outside, Rosie and Alex follow her. Alex counsels her and tells her to follow her feelings to Toby, or she may regret it, concluding that he feels about Rosie. While he asked her to forget what had happened, Katie interrupted him with a kiss. At the time, Alex learned that Rosie couldn't remember the kiss they shared on her 18th birthday. He realized that he was misunderstood in his interpretation. The desire to forget that night because she wanted to stay platonic, take her legacy from her father, Rosie, finally fulfilling her ambition to start her own hotel. Alex is her second guest. When he arrived, he told Rosie that he had ended his marriage to Bethany and shared with her recurring dream that he had about two people living together. They finally kissed.
